THE Transvaal war affords another illustration of the difference between the dark continent and this enlightened country. Here we are bored to death in a civilised way, slowly and surely, but over there people are Boered across the Styx in the twinkling of an eye. Boredom is over us all and the best remedy against this evil of the age is plenty of whisky cocktails with an ample supply of Tit-Bits biscuits; to be had in all grocery stores.

United Kingdom

London, 6th—Many Conservative members of both Houses of Parliament are trying to induce Lord Salisbury to demand from Germany an explanation of Emperor William's congratulatory telegram to President Krueger, and, if it be refused, that the British Ambassador be withdrawn from Berlin.

In the aristocratic clubs of which His Imperial Majesty is an honorary member, there is question of striking his name off their lists of members.

Lord Wolseley, Commander-in-chief, has been consulted as to the time required to mobilize the British army. He advises the Government to call out a sufficient number of the Militia and Reserve, so as to have another corps of 35,000 men ready for foreign service, in case of necessity.

All the papers of all political parties declare that Great Britain must maintain her right to the protectorate of the Transvaal at any cost, and not permit the interference of any foreign Power. They are equally of accord in demanding that the British Ambassador in Berlin be ordered to ask for an explanation of Emperor William's telegram to President Krueger.

Sir Cecil Rhodes has resigned the Premiership of the Cape Government, owing to differences of opinion with both the Imperial Government and the Governor of the Colony, Sir H. Lock. The post has been offered to Sir J. Robinson, who is now in the Transvaal trying to make peace, but he has refused to accept it.

Telegrams from Havana report that a large force of rebels under Maximo Gomez last night entered the town of Managua, (only twelve miles from Havana), the small Spanish garrison evacuating the place. The papers of this city praise highly the tactical skill of General Gomez, who, with a small and badly armed force has kept in check a disciplined army of five times its number.

The Transvaal question is the great topic of the day with the press and the public. In high official circles there is complete confidence that the question will be settled without giving rise to any European complication.

The newspaper warfare between this country and Germany is every day becoming more bitter respecting the now famous telegram wired by the Emperor William to President Kruger. While the English Press violently attacks the attitude assumed by the German Emperor, that of Germany replies with equal energy defending him and denying that England possesses any exclusive right respecting the Transvaal.

A telegram from the Transvaal dated some time ago, stated that the English in Johannesburg were anxious to rise against the Boers.

The resignation of Sir Cecil Rhodes has been accepted. Mr. John Gordon Sprigg will succeed him as Prime Minister of the Colony.

France

Paris, 6th—With the prospect of a war between England and Germany, public opinion in France is changing rapidly in favour of the former. Premier Ribot has declared to a newspaper reporter that Great Britain deserves great praise, and would fully maintain her dignity in any conflict with Germany.

The Figaro publishes to-day a violent article against England with respect to its foreign policy, in which especial attention is drawn to the apparent isolation of that country on account, it is alleged, of her pretensions abroad and high-handed treatment of weak nations. This important paper concludes its tirade by counseling France to stand by Germany should the latter country become involved in a war with England.

The Finance Minister Doumer has visited the Czarewitch on his passage through that town.

United States

New York, 6th—Telegrams from rebel sources in Cuba report that their forces have taken several towns near Havana, having easily driven out the small Spanish garrisons. There are rumours of Campos having shot several persons in Havana, and arrested many others on suspicion.

The latest telegrams say that Gomez has broken through General Campos's line in two places, and is meeting no resistance in his march across the province of Havana to that of Pinar del Rio. All the Havana papers are closely muzzled by the Governor-General.

The United States Treasury has offered to public subscriptions one hundred millions of dollars gold in 4 per cent Bonds, redeemable in thirty years. The subscription to the loan must be paid in gold coin.

Washington, 6th — The Venezuelan Boundary Commission has commenced its sittings.

It is said here that the United States will send a squadron to the Mediterranean to force the Turkish Government to pay heavy indemnity for the outrages on North American missionaries in Asia Minor. It is also rumoured that the British and United States squadrons will act together in the matter.

An insurgent column has, it is said arrived within 12 miles of Havana. Preparations for a siege are being made in the city of Havana.

Germany

Berlin, 6th—A rumour is current that Prince Hohenlohe intends to resign his post as Imperial Chancellor.

The Emperor granted audience to-day to Dr. Leyds who is a secretary of State of the Transvaal Republic.

Russia

St. Petersburg, 6th—All the Russian papers applaud Emperor William and the German papers for their hostility to Great Britain in the Transvaal question.

Belgium

Brussels, 6th—Five Anarchists were arrested today at Liege. Bombs and explosive materials were found in their lodgings.

The remains of Frere Orban were buried to-day with every honour.

Switzerland

Berne, 6th—The Federal Council was engaged to-day in discussing the abduction from Neufchatel of the Abyssinians at schools in that town. What resolution was arrived at, has not been made known.

Italy

Genoa, 6th — Engineers of Ansaldo's firm say that the cruiser Garibaldi will be ready for delivery to the Argentine Government at the end of this or beginning of next month, as work on her is carried on all night by electric light.

It is announced that as soon as the Chamber of Deputies re-opens, Signor Barzilai will question the Government respecting the isolation of Italy among the European Powers, which it is alleged is becoming more marked every day.

Spain

Madrid, 6th—A telegram from Havana reports a railway train blown up with dynamite by the rebels, and many passengers killed and injured.

Another reinforcements of 1,800 troops sailed this morning from Santander for Cuba. The populace cheered them vociferously.

A telegram from Havana reports that, in Melena del Sur, some 60 kilometres from the Capital, there has been a bloody fight, in which the rebels were routed with great loss.

According to telegrams received from Havana, fresh bands of insurgents have arrived in the Province of Pinar del Rio, which have set fire to several villages and destroyed by means of dynamite all the railways and bridges in their path.

The unfavourable news received lately from Cuba is seriously affecting the public mind. The press is still more severe in its censure of the Canovas del Castillo and urges it to make fully public what is actually going on in the island. In Barcelona a a popular meeting was held this afternoon to urge on the Government the necessity for making still greater efforts to quash the rebellion.

General Martinez Campos is being subjected by the Press, to severe criticism. The Spanish troops have succeeded in paralizing the movements of the insurgents in the West of the island. General Navarro's column is reported to have routed to-day a rebel force.

Portugal

The famous Portuguese artist Florinda died here to-day after a short illness. Florinda was credited with being one of the best artists in Europe.

Chile

Valparaiso, 6th—The Chilian Mauser has been tried with the most satisfactory results.

There is a rumour that a special Congress of notables will be held in Peru to decide the Tacna and Arica question.

Mariano Sarratea Pinto has been named Secretary of the Chilian Legation in Washington.

Brazil.

Rio, 6th.—Although the weather is extremely warm, public health continues good.

The Italian Minister has made another claim for indemnity for the murder of young Giacomazzi in the San Pedro Theatre at Porto Alegre.

A defalcation of 900 contos in the Custom House at Manaos has come to light, the treasurer being the guilty party.

To-morrow the Minister of Foreign Affairs will deliver to the British Minister, Mr. Phipps, the official note refusing to submit the Trinidad question to arbitration.

The cable steamer Faraday has arrived at Para with the new cable to be laid across the Amazon from Belem to Manaos. A scientific Commission from the British Museum has arrived in her, to study the fauna on the banks of the Amazon.

The managers of foreign Banks in Brazil will present a joint protest to the Minister of Finance against the new law in reference to bills of exchange.

MR. DRABBLE'S SPEECH.

We have read many a speech of our old friend Mr. George W. Drabble at successive annual meetings of the shareholders of that most flourishing institution, the London and River Plate Bank, so aptly termed the Bank of England of the River Plate—but never in all the record of Board eloquence have we come across a happier effort in financial rhetoric than his speech last month. In every line we can read the complacency of the orator, and we can even hear the echoes of the applauding shareholders wafted to the Plate. The London and River Plate Bank has a grand business, a grand future, and we may add a grand chairman. Private advices from London inform us that his statements at the Bank meeting produced quite a sensation in London.

We cannot do better than quote Mr. Drabble's words at length :—

"It is instructive from time to time to glance back at the history of any enterprise or company in which we are interested. I have, therefore, been examining various records kept at the bank, and also the reports which have been submitted to the shareholders since its formation. The are 33 in number, including the report now submitted for your approval, and it has been most pleasing to me to find that out of these 33 reports so issued only one can be considered of an unsatisfactory character. (Applause.) That was the report issued in the year 1876, when, some of you will recollect, there was a very severe financial crisis ruling in the River Plate, and when, after distributing an interim dividend of 4 per cent., the board was unable to recommend any further distribution, but had to appeal to our reserve to the extent of upwards of £83,000. Of that I find only £20,000 was returned to the reserve, but with that exception, every other report can be considered satisfactory. I was very pleased, also to find that the report submitted today can be ranked amongst the most satisfactory ones. (Applause.) I find that we have distributed during those 35 years an average of upwards of 11⅛ per cent. each year. We have also contributed out of profits £300,000 to the share capital, and from the same source we have piled up, as you will see by the report, including what we recommend this year, £950,000 to reserve. (Applause.) Now, it appeared to me, with such a record, interesting to consider to what sources or to what causes we should attribute this great success. I summarise the whole under two headings; first, our sound policy, coupled with careful management, and secondly, the material progress of those countries which are the main seats of our banking operations. By this I allude more particularly to the countries of the River Plate, for Brazil, of course, has only recently been entered upon by us. In alluding to the progress of the River Plate countries, I will first take the Argentine Republic. I daresay some of you are shareholders in the most important railway in the country, the Buenos Aires Great Southern, and I have no doubt you may be also shareholders in the Central Uruguay Railway Company. Those who are so will have studied with great interest the statements presented in the last reports, showing the immense increase in traffic, and I am sure that other railway companies will also have enjoyed increases. I think there is no better barometer of the position and progress of these countries than their railway traffics. (Applause.) For, as you know, the countries do not possess well made roads, and therefore it is that the whole of their traffic, both inwards and outwards, is conveyed by the railways.

"Then, I have gleaned from other statistics, and I find more particularly, taking the Argentine Republic into consideration, that the population of the City of Buenos Aires in 1857 was 78,000 people, in 1892, 295,000, whilst at the present year it can safely be estimated at 700,000 people. (Applause). Then let us take up their most important product, wool. In the year 1875 there were only 140,000 bales exported, while in the present year without doubt the clip will yield upwards of 500,000 bales. Another article is wine—that is also assuming great importance; and if you have read the reports of the Argentine Great Western you will find how greatly dependent that railway is for its traffic on the conveyance of wines or fruit from the Andean provinces. Frozen meat is a new feature. In the year 1890, 448,000 sheep were exported, while in the year 1894 the exports amounted to 1,300,000, and in the present year the export will be still larger. Hides and tallow do not show the same amount of increase in the same proportion, but if we turn to cereals, we find a wonderful development. In the year 1875 they had to import for local consumption 20,000 tons, whilst in the year 1894, after providing for all local wants, the export was 1,500,000 tons, and this year that export will be further increased. Then we find other industries are being developed. There are distilleries, a large woollen manufactory, which is likely to be followed by others, There are also hat manufactories, and others, all of which require banking facilities; and I quote these that you may know what the position of the country is, "viz-a-vis" our banking interest. I shall not detain you with any details as regards the Uruguay Republic; sufficient to say that their exports have not, in as large proportion as the exports from the Argentine, so materially increased, whilst, when we opened our branch in Brazil, I stated to you that the products of that country alone exceed upwards of £40,000,000. The next consideration is whether in our bank we have the same progress as I have shown you is manifested in the countries themselves. First, as to our deposit accounts and accounts current; in the year 1874 they represented £2,737,000, in the year 1884, £3,231,000; and in the year 1894, £9,840,000. Our bills discounted and advances at the same dates in 1874 were £3,429,000; in 1884 they were £4,098,000; and in 1894 £10,537,000. (Applause.) Then our cash in hand was £1,078,000 in the year 1874; £1,374,000 in the year 1884; and £5,620,000 in the year 1894. (Applause.) But I find that our profits do not increase in the same proportion as the volume of business we are compelled to undertake, and I consider that the best proof of the sound policy of the board in persistently piling up our reserve account and giving us those means to enable as to undertake the volume of sound and good business which is presented to our bank. (Applause.) Now let us turn to our present report. If you have compared the balance-sheet this year with that presented last year, you will see that many figures are very similar. The one which shows greater variation on decrease is undet the head of bills advised, being drafts in transit. This year we have only £607,000, whilst last year the item amounted to £1,081,000. That increase, you will readily understand, will always be a varying amount, according to the business done during the two months before the issue of our report. Bills for collection shows an increase of £200,000, and the cash on hand may be considered similar to that of last year. The figures under the head of bank premises show an increase of £32,000. This is accounted for by the new premises we have bought for the Brazilian branches, and by our not having received the money for the sale of the Carabassa property, to which I alluded at our last meeting. That money represents £65,000, which will go in reduction of the amount appearing in the balance-sheet. Let us new pass on to the profit and loss account. You will find in this that our gross profit shows an increase of £20,000, while our expenditure, with the new branches we have opened, shows an increase of £10,000.

We have paid an interim dividend of 6 per cent., and recommend, subject to your approval, a distribution of a dividend of 5 per cent., requiring £45,000, a distribution as a bonus of a further 5 per cent., requiring another £45,000, making the total distribution for the year 16 per cent. —the highest distribution that has ever been made by this bank. (Applause.) Then we propose following the same policy that we have always pursued, of strengthening in every way our position. We propose to pass again £50,000 to our reserve account, to pass £5,000 to the pension and benevolent fund, and to carry forward to profit and loss new account £24,956. And again we tell you that our liabilities payable in gold are represented by assets payable in gold, whilst the Brazilian currency suffers no depreciation at the rate of exchange now ruling, as due provision has been made. We also tell you that we make ample provision for bad and doubtful debts. I have always told you that we err on the side of caution, and we have done so, this time. So long as I am chairman, and I believe so long as the present board are occupying the position they now occupy, that will be our permanent course. (Applause.) I have endeavoured once more to place before you very briefly the past history of the bank, also its present position, and when I opened my remarks I stated that perhaps after refreshing our recollection of the past we might be able to form some guide as to the future. I think the best guide that you can have is the consideration of what has been done in the past. We have gone through various trials, many anxieties, and we shall continue to have the same. We do not mean to say that this bank is infallible; we do not mean to say that we shall be able to avoid losses; but we do mean to say that we make every provision, and we give the strictest instructions to keep our banking business on the safest possible lines. I dare say we lose business by doing this, but we prefer that policy, and it will continue to be the aim of the board. It will be the aim of the board now and for all future times. It is a great pleasure for me to think that the River Plate Bank never enjoyed better credit than it now enjoys, and to tell you that our reports speak of a good and abundant wool clip, and of bountiful harvests. We also know that the prices on this side for all products are higher than they were last year, and therefore the producers will perhaps recoup those losses they sustained the year before. All these are important points to you as shareholders, and to us as directors looking after your interests. I will now conclude by moving, "That the report and accounts be received, adopted, and entered on the minutes." (Applause.)

RADS AT THE HELM.

WORKING OF THE NEW FRENCH CABINET.

Paris, Nov. 28, 1895.

The transit of the Radical star in the political firmament is a phenomenon that engrosses the attention of all classes, and there could be perhaps no more fitting moment to recall the tender apostrophe of the usually jovial Flaccus to that weather-worn and wave-beaten structure known as the ship of state. Indeed the "fluctus novi" of the poet are not wanting, and already one feels the freshening gale from the unexplored deep. Many like him of Tivoli will shake their heads and weep and implore the "cherished vessel" to remain safely at anchor and bear the ills of inaction rather than fly to others we know not of. Others will point to its torn sails and its battered sides, but, towering over these timid patriots and all the obstacles their tenderness or their interests may place in the way, the manly figure of the Radical champion stands out in bold relief, like "a hero in the strife." He seems to say: "Sailors, we must abandon the stinking waters of this port. Our beams are rotting, but our vessel is still seaworthy. We ourselves are here breathing the pestilential air of corruption. The ocean of reform lies unexplored before us. Oh! for a breath of the pure breezes that ripple its surface. Mine the task of avoiding the rocks and shoals and guiding our ship to the haven of national contentment." And thus the "noble daughter of the forest"—to use the metaphoric language of the poet—sails out of port, laden with the good wishes of the many and the imprecations of the few—as light a cargo as the load of shades in old Charon's boat.

The advent of the Radicals to power—the first instance of a homogeneous Radical cabinet since the Commune—caused joy in some quarters, consternation in others and surprise everywhere. Impossible as it would be to measure the true importance of this move, which is little short of a revolution, an idea of the immense stride accomplished must force itself on anyone who takes the trouble of comparing the condition of France to-day with that which existed prior to the famous coup d'état of the 2nd December. In that epoch, which now seems remote, socialistic tendencies were regarded as a supreme danger; and this popular feeling, this natural misgiving, Napoleon the "Petit" was quick enough to perceive and bold enough to render subservient to his ambition. The fear of socialism and its reforms placed that degraded specimen of humanity on the throne, not, it is true, without some difficulty, since he waded through a stream of Parisian blood. Mark the reaction; the people to-day clamor for reform. The ægis of Republicanism or conservatism is powerless to shield the dishonest functionary, and the result is that a party enjoying prestige, but not a majority in the Chambers, is to-day in power. And, as nothing succeeds like success, the country is witnessing the curious spectacle of seeing the very adversaries of the Rads supporting the new Government. Are these converts whitewashing themselves with Radicalism?

Monsieur Bourgeois had no sooner organized his cabinet than he ordered the capture of the famous Arton—the arch-briber of legislators and ex-agent of Baron Reinach, the late Baron, I should say, for he is dead and probably wandering in a region where the climate is not so cold as at present in Paris. Seven cabinets had refused to imprison Arton, who owed his astonishing immunity to the fact that he held documents that would damn many a politician. Arton was living comfortably in England. In a few days he and probably the not less famous Cornelius Hertz will cross the channel. In the meantime La France is publishing the list of "chéquards" ("coimeros—en todas partes se cuecen habas!") Simultaneous with the capture of Arton, the bill of incompatibility raised a storm and unseated several legislators, for according to this act no citizen can occupy a seat in the legislature and at the same time hold a post in any State enterprise. Mr. Christofle was tossed off the curule-chair of the Credit Foncier. In fact the bill, even before it was laid on the table, created consternation. Mons. Bourgeois is determined to sweep away all those corrupt elements which have long thriven under the mask of political principles. But this campaign against the waylayers of the budget and the seekers of bribes will only assume an interesting phase when Arton stands at the bar to answer the manifold charges brought against him. Arton, whose real name is Aaron—is a man of extraordinary intellectual power; at least so we are told by his ex-mistress, who no doubt had repeated occasions to appreciate his penetration and judgment. He first sprang into existence or notoriety—which is existence for men of his calibre—in 1872. He was at that time in Rio Janeiro, and there he formally became a Frenchman—a thorough Frenchman. He might have become a German, as being a native of Metz, he had a right to choose either nationality. The Fates, which have singularly protected Germany, prompted him to become French, and he did so with a certain amount of enthusiasm. He married, abandoned his wife, and followed a rich Brazilian lady to Paris. With her money he soon elbowed his way through the crowd to the very first rank, and eventually he soared into finances—with what success we all know. Fickle in his love—as most capitalists are—he abandoned the Brazilian lady and took on to himself without any formality beyond a champagne-supper, a most charming Parisienne, the very lady who had so much admiration for his qualities. In appearance he is a vulgar man and would easily pass for a retired butcher.

But the elimination of corruption is not the only aim of the Radical Cabinet, whose strong socialistic tendencies are beginning to find expression in bills affecting inheritance and the welfare of the working classes. The question of the relations between the capitalist and the labourer is, we are told, being deeply studied, and it is quite possible that many abuses (such as, for instance, the custom of the employer to refuse work to a former employee returning from military service) will be suppressed. Bills for the protection of labourers in their old age will also be drawn up. "Mais tout ca c'est très bien"; but how long will the Cabinet last? It is idle to peer into the obscurity of the future or seek to lift the veil that shields approaching events from our view. No one can say how long this radico-socialistic Cabinet will resist the current of affected interests. So far everything is going well in the Chambers; legislators are, perhaps, afraid ot vote against any measure that aims at the suppression of corruption or the amelioration of the working-classes. But should the new Cabinet fall into a trap and sustain a defeat, it is quite possible Mons. Bourgeois may appeal to a general election, and, as elections here as well as in Argentina have been generally found to favour those already in power, it is probable the Radicals will hold the reins of Government until the next turn in the wheel of fortune brings the advanced Socialists to the front. Then tremble, thrones of Europe.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

GENERAL NEWS.

(From our own Correspondent).

Dec. 4th.

By news, I mean that Sarti was committed for trial this afternoon—Jabez Balfour, who is still at Pentonville will be brought up for examination on the 9th, in reference to Liberator matters the Receiver General is studying—in Islington there has been another frightful case of child mutilation. The supposed criminal is an imbecile boy named Gamble. It is thought now that the recent case of the same kind in the same district was the work of the same hand. In the present instance the child, only three and a half years old, was discovered in a stable and tied up in a sack with his mouth filled with chaff or sweepings of the stable. He was stabbed in the chest and back, and a part of the child's body was completely severed. As far as we know to-night he is still alive.

The Eastern question need not be referred to, for you will know by telegram what occurs, and we at this moment are in the same state of doubt and apprehension as when the Magdalena left. The Dryad it seems never reached the Dardanelles, but was stopped on the way when the British Government found that no firman would be granted for the passage of foreign ships of war. The Sultan has again adopted the plea of making direct appeals to the several Governments of the European powers. It is now nearly a month since Lord Salisbury's speech at Guildhall appeased the anxiety of the Bourses by announcing the complete concert of Europe on the Turkish question. Judging from the speech made some few hours ago by the Emperor of Germany the "entente" still exists, and therefore no comment is of value, still the angry circular issued by the Anglo-Armenian Association in consequence of Lord Salisbury's statement that no further relief need be sent to Sassun, as Armenia was impassable shows the impatience not only of the philanthropists but of the whole country. Even Mr. John Morley, cool and philosophic as he may be, could not forego a sneer at the "concert of Europe" while he paid a high compliment to Lord Salisbury for his prudent management of our foreign affairs. We must allow the premier to wear his laurels until we know more. Many foresaw the rocks ahead when, as a Vienna paper has just said, 'England made an inopportune move' in this Armenian question. If the present crisis passes over we shall lose our prestige at the Porte, where Russia is gaining ground by running with the hare and hunting with the hounds. If difficulties ensue, Russia and Russia only will be the gainer, unless matters are so pushed as to create a general war, and then no one can foretell the result. A German paper says, the only war will be between France and Germany, and before long. It is of no importance, it says, what other European power joins or stands aloof. The war will be long and bloody, and the result to victor as well as vanquished, and to all the continental nations armed to the teeth, whether actually engaged or no, will be exhaustion, and the world will remain for England, the United States and Australia (?)

As for opinion in England and the rest of the United Kingdom in regard to the existing position of affairs, I may quote a speech of Sir E. R. Russell last night—He says, "the National honour was being discredited and disgraced by the Government through lack of decisive action"; and he ures the Liberals to unite in calling Lord Rosebery back to England to do his duty. Not only the Gladstonians, but the Samuel Smiths, the Duke of Westminster and other Unionists who have warmly espoused the Armenian cause are equally incensed. Surely at present their indignation is premature and denotes ignorance of European politics. The position of Lord Salisbury is a most delicate and difficult one, but it arose from his weakness in listening to those very men when he first came into power; and perhaps from the sad vanity of showing what he "the English Bismark" could do. Let us wait and see, before we condemn him as a failure.

Your Catholic readers will find this morning's Times most interesting reading. It contains a report of Lord Russell's speech at the annual meeting of the Catholic Social Union. Naturally, the voluntary School question, growing more and more incandescent every day, was the leading theme. It was a curious and hopeful sight to see the Lord chief Justice of England side by side with Cardinal Vaughan, Father Vaughan S. J., Mr. Justin McCarthy and the Duke of Norfolk arguing for State-paid, free education for Catholics as well as for Anglicans and non-conformists, provided each sect is allowed control of the religious portion of the education and of the appointment of the teachers. As for the control of the funds supplied by the State, Cardinal Vaughan almost with contempt expressed his willingness to receive inspectors on behalf of the State or of the School boards. These demands seem so reasonable, one wonders where the difficulty can come in. But it does. And it is the old difficulty—sectarian polemics—which necessitated the compromise that now exists and which appeared to work so well. On behalf of the Churches, Anglican and Catholic, it must be admitted that under Mr. Acland's philosophic administration the school boards worked so very well that both Catholic and Anglican voluntary contributions to their own Schools fell off. The official figures are before me, but it is no use pottering with a question which if there is civil peace in the world will occupy the attention of all of us, whether we like it or not, for months and months to come. I may say that Lord Russell's complaint—"why should we, Catholics, pay school rates when we do not benefit by them?"—is an old argument that in our days, when the State is becoming parent, parson, schoolmaster, trafficker, and almost family doctor in its sanitary regulations, cannot for one moment be entertained. What is for the good of the community is paid for by the community independently of private views or interests. As Mr. John Morley said in his great speech the day before yesterday at Newcastle—"What is the use of spending millions in scrambling for possessions in all parts of the world, if we do not educate our people so as they can benefit by them?" Now Morley is no Socialist. He said again in his speech—"I am not satisfied the new ideas are true"—thus disappointing many who imagined that at Newcastle he was going to announce "a new lead." Perhaps he reserves it for the Montrose burghs. Anyhow Mr. Chamberlain, who is no more of a Socialist than he is, has taken a new lead. He has just issued a circular to the Colonial authorities demanding the most minute details in regard to commercial prices and foreign competition. In fact, he is following the German State methods recommended for years by our Consuls abroad in nearly all their reports. Even the St. James's Gazette heads an article to night: "End of Laissez Faire." But what a stupid article! The poor, ignorant writer treats the "end of Laissez Faire" as a Conservative victory! Literary Englishmen always refer to Carlyle and Ruskin, two half-madmen, as the initiators of the ideas now encircling us, and because, forsooth, they opposed Cobdenism. If anything, it was free trade which was the originator of modern Socialism. Even the French Socialists of 1848 who succeeded the old Phalansterians were free traders; and, of course, Marx and all his school are the same. The old Liberal dread of State interference clung even to the late Ministry, and was one of the reasons of its fall. All honour to Mr. Chamberlain for his courage in initiating a valuable commercial reform, even if he found the text of his circular in the pigeon-holes of his predecessor. I think it was Mr. Chamberlain himself who said lately—"before we can federalise the empire we must get the colonies to federalise themselves." Quite so. And he is taking the right way to open their eyes to the benefits of union. President Cleveland, in his own way and in regard to conditions ruling in his country, is doing the same by teaching the Americans that the world is not only for all of us, but the more we work together to the exclusion of interests and "bugs" of all denominations the more we shall get out of it. You are fond in Argentina of imitating the great American Republic. President Cleveland's message is admirable and most important, and will be instructive reading to any native caught in the toils of currency-mongering. The subject it refers to will be of more immediate interest a few months hence. The Times has columns about the Message.

Mr. Wilson, in the Investors' Review of this month, has a scathing article against the prevailing jingoism and vulgar notions of Imperialism. Every word he says, every warning he gives, is true; but I fear it is too late. It is a comfort to see, at all events, that our British explosive-cordite has proved so effective and bears all changes of climate and handling so well that the French are abandoning melenite and experimenting in cordite. One of the difficulties of cordite—its corrosive effect on the rifling of the gun barrels—has been overcome by a slight chemical change in the composition, but principally by the simple expedient of deepening and widening the rifle.

THE TRANSVAAL REPUBLIC.

Dr. Jameson's mad freak and the consequent disaster has vividly brought to my mind my recent visit to South Africa, and the many long conversations I had with Dutch Africanders, as the natives of South Africa who are of Dutch descent are called.

I know a good deal of the history of these peculiar people, and I cannot deny that, to a certain extent, I have a considerable amount of sympathy for them. Shortly, the story of the inhabitants of the Transvaal is the following:—"When Holland handed over the Cape Colony to England, for good and all, a good many of the Dutch families objected to being handed over in this off-hand manner to a nation whose language they did not understand, and who was not kindred to them in many other ways. They took to arms, but were defeated, and then they decided to give up their homes and their all, and treck i. e. shift away to another place. They went north and settled in what is now Natal, but they were disturbed once more by English troops, and once more resigned everything rather than be a conquered nation. They again went North and West and founded the free state of the Transvaal River. Here they were left undisturbed until gold and diamonds had been found in their country in abundance, and many thousand people of European descent had settled on the once barren tracts to dig for gold and diamonds.

Then, a gentleman who belonged to a family who had early come out to Natal, A. Mr.———afterwards Sir Theophilus Shepstone, whom I recollect well enough to have been the holder of various, more or less important, positions in Natal, a somewhat pompous person to look at and speak to, took upon himself to start a plebiscite in the Transvaal Republic among all the inhabitants, irrespective of nationality, colour or creed, and he got signatures enough together for a document asking England to annex the Transvaal, so as to convince the British Government that the people really wanted to be annexed. Then came the protest of the Boers, in which they proved that only an infinitely small proportion of the persons who signed the petition were natives of the soil, boers, and that the majority of the signers were persons who had no claim, by birth at least, to have a voice in the matter.

Then came the Boer rising, the disaster of Majuba Hill and the giving back their independence to the Transvaal people.

I have not the honor of being an Englishman by birth, but I am one in sympathy, and I must declare that Majuba Hill business, when the news first arrived, made me feel queer. I stood on the pier of a British port not far away from Natal, and saw a few battalions of British soldiers embark for Natal, to help to right matters in South Africa, and I saw the same troops when they came back. They had not fired a shot, and could only tell of having been ordered to do nothing, and to wait quietly. Curses loud and curses deep were heard, and it took us all some time until we could grasp the nobility of sentiment, the loftiness of mind displayed by the grandest of old men when he gave the Boers back what had, as he felt, been unjustly taken from them, i. e. their independence. Only a Gladstone, only England could do such a magnanimous deed "after a defeat." No other nation could have been found to act so nobly, and no other nation could have come out of the matter unblemished.

And now the Transvaal burghers have made a law that no person can have a vote but he who is born in the country. Once bit, twice shy. Who will blame them? The foreigners, the "Nithlanders," as they are called, are in the majority there just now, and the Dutch would be outvoted at once in case these Nitlanders had a vote.

People of the Barny Barnato stamp are the influential men there, and the Dutch feel doubtful about selling their birthright to persons of that ilk. I must confess myself that I believe the welfare of the country just as well looked after by the Dutch, who are honest, sturdy, hard-working men, and who love their country and intend to remain in it, which is not the case with these birds of passage who clamor just now for a vote.

I can talk that Cape Dutch so well that I have been taken for an Africander, and as I felt deeply interested in the history and welfare of the country and its inhabitants, I took care during my various visits there, to have long talks with the people. They one and all assured me that they had a great liking for the good specimen of Englishmen who lived among them, and who had done so much to develop their country, but they would not brook the idea of having themselves placed under the Government of a power so far away as England, and of whose tact and discrimination they had not always had favorable proofs. In this they are right, for the most out and out John Bull cannot, and does not, deny that grave blunders have from time to time been committed by the Home Government in matters appertaining to the Cape Colony. They see no reason why the wealth suddenly discovered as lying hidden in their soil should cause them to surrender their independence, and they point to the records of their Government with just pride. Never has a Transvaal Africander been known to defraud his country, accept a bribe or abuse his position for selfish purposes. The people are simple, honest and brave, and knew little or nothing of the wickedness of the outer world until the swarms of invaders, the nitlanders came to dig for gold. The people who now fight for their rights are not over loveable, from a "man-of-the-world" point of view. I admit that, but they claim the right to make the laws in the land of their birth, with the same right with which the natives of this country made them until they elected to give votes to Europeans out of their own free will. Had Argentina been annexed once by means of a fraudulent plebiscite, I question whether the Argentines would have allowed outsiders to vote in a hurry.

The Africanders of South Africa are not square, squat men, not the Dutchmen of the stage or imagination, but light, tall, wiry men, brown of cheek and clear of eye. They are the best horsemen, the best shots, and peaceful and hospitable to a degree.

Let justice be done to them.

THE MARIA MORGAN HOSPITAL.

We have already advised our readers of this splendid hospital, which Mrs. Morgan of Giles is erecting in San Antonio de Areco to the memory of her beloved daughter Mary, who died in Chicago when on a tour of pleasure with her mother and two brothers, visiting the great exhibition in 1893.

As the hospital is now nearly finished and will soon be opened for patients it may interest many of our readers to know that it will be directed and managed by the nuns of the order of "The Little Company of Mary" which is a new order of nuns established in Chicago, and about which order we have received the following interesting details:—

In an unpretentious wooden house in Indiana Avenue live the Little Company of Mary. Here they came direct from Rome two years ago and took up the work of nursing the sick and comforting the sorrowful of Chicago. One of the strictest vows of the order is that no matter where or when they are called they must respond immediately. Protestant and Catholic, Gentile and Jew, rich and poor, all are the same to the little sisters. The only questions are: "Where is the sick?" What is the disease?" Should two calls for assistance come to the improvised convent at the same time, one from a wealthy patient, the other from a home of poverty, the poor is the first considered. It is understood by the sisters that the rich will be able to find aid elsewhere.

The Little Company of Mary is the only one of the order in America. It was founded by Charles A. Mair in memory of his wife, who died in Rome. In 1889 Mr. and Mrs. Mair were travelling in Europe, and when Italy was reached Mrs. Mair was taken with the Roman fever. During her prolonged illness she was cared for by the sisters of this order. Then at last death came and Mrs. Mair was buried far away from home. Under the blue Italian sky, in the Santo Remzo cemetery at Rome she was laid away. Here the violets constantly bloom above her, and about the white cross at her head green ivy clings. But this was not a sufficiently lasting memorial. The sisters came across the sea to perpetuate her memory in the land where she was born and in the city where her married life had been spent. Mr. Mair gave the order for the little frame cottags at 4124 Indiana Avenue, and more than that, bore all the expense of bringing the reverend mother and her six assistants to Chicago.

The Little Company consists of Mother Veronica and six sisters. Two of these Sister Mary Philomena and Sister Mary Evangelist, but recently took their final vows. All them are either English or Irish women. Although the mother house is in Rome the order does not number an Italian among the sisters, their work in that country being entirely among the English-speaking people. While the mission of the order is to minister to the sick, yet those who suffer from cold and hunger never ask in vain at the little home in Indiana Avenue. As long as there is a crust of bread in the house it is given freely, and then if succor is needed for others when this is gone, the sisters go out and beg it.

Although the order nurse alike among rich and poor, the nursing is not always all that is required of them in the homes of poverty. Here when it is necessary, if the mother of the family is the sick one, the care of the house and the children often falls upon the sisters. The husband and children, as well as the patient, are provided with food, and the little ones are washed and dressed and sent off to school. Often the house has to be cleaned, and many is the time that these little sisters have gone to the nearest butcher and begged beef for tea for the patient whom they are nursing. The maternal feeling is strong in all of these women, and among the little children they work with great zeal and success.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The second barrel of the twin holiday went off nicely and without much racket. Everybody went somewhere out of town, to amuse him (or her) self. There were very grand ceremonies in the Santo Domingo Church, where the eloquent Father Becco preached. The philanthrophic powwow in Lezama was brought to a wind-up, but the chill in the temperature interfered slightly with the attendance. The theatres and Wirth's circus were crowded. No more holidays, single or double-barelled, till Carnival, which is early this year, middle of next month.

The R. M. S. Danube has brought a lot of old friends to welcome back and strangers to be taken in. The fine steamer is out of quarantine and will enter La Plata Dock at noon. Parties wishing to meet their friends should take the 10 a. m. train from Central, returning by the special that conveys the passengers to town.

The little cutter "Spray" leaves its berth in No. 3 dock this morning. Sr. B. A. Lucich has placed his ship at the service of Captain Slocum, so that the little ship may be thoroughly cleaned and repaired before proceeding on her adventurous voyage. The Captain informs us that it is his intention to go round Cape Horn, up the West Coast, cross the Pacific to Australia, and thence to China. He proposes to start in about a week, and promises to write from time to time.

The news about the Transvaal question in our telegrams is tremendous. The cream of England, in Parliament and the Press, demands that Emperor William be called on to explain his telegram to old President Krueger. The Carlton, the Reform, the Malborough, the Royal Yacht Squadron and the other aristocratic Clubs in London threaten to wipe William the Impetuous off their list of members, and there is a "perfectly dreadful" how-do-you-do all round. The "camisa" is not "de once varas" but "de once millones de varas". If it were William's Chancellor or Foreign Minister he could called on to explain or be kicked out. But the great Kaiser himself? Impossible! The Greatest lark of all of all in connection with the rumpus is that, while the Russian papers are patting William on the back, the French Premier, Ribot is doing the same on burly John Bull's spine. This is grand. To-morrow we shall see the French and Russian papers clawing at each other's eyes. He! He! Haw! Cleveland first, Dr. Jameson second, Kaiser William third; all keeping the world moving. Meanwhile official John Bull keeps his icy temper and says this last flare-up will also be arranged amicably. Nevertheless he has quietly consulted his head fighting man, Lord Wolseley, as to the mobilization of his army.

The dock-labourers strike was in "statu quo." So were the "casos sospechosos." Nothing fresh about either.

To judge from the enormous concourse at the Parque Lezama yesterday, it would seen that all the population had determined to open the day in that beautiful quinta. All the amusements were well patronized, but especially the race game. We noticed one spectator who bet on one horse forty consecutive times; it turning up a winner once. Such is the spirit of gambling.

The members of the Choral Union are reminded of the General Meeting that is to take place to-night in the salon Enfants de Beranger. Chair to be taken at 8.30 p.m.

We see that the Prefect of the Port has given his decision in regard to the late trifling collision between the Eolo and Golondrina when leaving this port. The Prefect apparently does not consider the case a very serious one, as after carefully studying all the evidence in the case, instead of fining the captain of the Eolo, as the complaining captain demanded, he merely resolves that he shall be reprimanded.

It is definitely announced by the Corean Chargé d'Affaires in Washington that the next Minister to represent the Government of Corea will be a Prince of that country's reigning Royal family, the King's second son, whose arrival may be expected in the course of a few months. His advent is looked forward to with pleasure, as it is supposed that his presence in Washington as representative of his Royal sire will add to the interesting character of the picturesque little Legation over which he comes to preside, which, ever since its establishment, has been a quaint and notable feature of the cosmopolitan life of the Capital.

The principal news in the Star and Herald of Panama of December 12th to hand yesterday:—"M. Cavelier has just arrived by the R.M.S. Medway, bringing with him 79 workmen for the Canal Co. Cenaral A. Ezeta, ex-Vice-Pretident of Salvador has issued a circular denying the Government's charges against him. He complains that it was unjust to confiscate his property. The $100,000 Government money he disposed of was appropriated by Congress to pay the expenses of the President's trip to Europe which did not take place. Dr. Carrasquilla, a physician of Bogota, is claimed, has discovered an effectual cure for leprosy. The efficacy of the remedy has been proved by the cure of two persons suffering from leprosy. The leading doctors of Bogota admit that a valuable discovery has been made. From the annual Report of the Auditor for the State and other Departments of the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30th 1895, we see that the Consulate General of the United States at Panama ranks first as to the shipment of seamen in foreign ports. The amount of extra vages and arrears collected for the year at Panama was $35,253.39. Antwerp ranks second with a total of $15,401.38 paid to seamen. Therefore these statistics show Panama to be first in reference to the shipment of seamen on American ships. Among the passengers who arrived in Panama from the South Coast per steamor Pizarro is Mr. J. W. Warburton, late British Consul at Valparaiso. Mr. Warburton is on his way to San Francisco to occupy the position of H. M. Consul General. The exported products of the Isthmus of Panama for the month of November amounted to $42,244.02."

The Monroe doctrine should have, and may have, for all we know, a clause providing that Jonathan, and he alone, is authorized to "run" astronomy on this Continent. At all events, he sent us Dr. Gould to establish the Cordoba Observatory, now one of the first in the world, and, as will be seen by the following paragraph, he bosses an equally good one at Arequipa:—"A Boston despatch states that the most valuable telescope of Harvard observatory is about to be sent to the Arequipa, (Peru) station. The Harvard Observatory is one of the most famous and reliable of its kind in the world. In the entire history of astronomical observation, covering more than 2,000 years, it is said only fifteen "new" stars have been noted, and the last two recorded have been discovered by Harvard. Both were inhabitants of the Southern hemisphere and were recorded by the photographing telescope of the Harvard station in Arequipa. The Peru Station is said to take as many as 2000 photographs a year of the southern heavens, and it may be that the new telescope which is to be sent there is to take the other photographs of the "new" star recently discovered in constellation Carina—not a star which has always existed, but one which "just happens," shines brightly, increasing in radiance until it reaches its maximum brilliancy, and then fades into insignificance or passes away entirely."

TO THE SALTO GUAYRA ON HORSEBACK.

BY

(P. A. Freund.)

A wonderful waterfall is the Salto Guayra, not only on account of tremendous volume of water which it carries and the total height of the Falls, but also on account of the varying beauty of the surrounding scenery and the length of the sloping road over which the surging waters are carried.

The Upper Parana is a mighty river, which comes from the Interior and the eastern heights of Brazil. Many mighty rivers, such as the Tiete, the Parana-Panema and many others, join and proceed slowly over the Brazilian high table land, until they reach the Maracayú Mountain, which is a slope or one sided grandiest, with its foot in Paraguay, while its top constitutes the Brazilian frontier. The Upper Parana, reaching this slope, overflows it, and tumbles down the steep incline in a confused mass of foaming cascades, which spread its white spray into the air and against rock, and forest. From deep culverts these waters suddenly leap over big pointed rocks and by the impetus of their downward course appear to rest like a solid mass on the top of their granite barriers, and then fall down again with increased noise and force filling the air with fog and foam, and cushing along like the strongest mill stream-through granite channels and over rocky mountain beds.

Meanwhile the rocky shore, being clad in the finest Spring green of a tropical forest, shows exactly how far the flow of the waters extends sideways, and it is partly the vivid extremes between the colours of the foaming waters and the fresh forests, and partly the extremes between so much noisy force, ebullition and voluminous moving masses, with the immovable, silent forest at its side, which impresses the mind, on beholding these falls, to such an extent that one cannot leave off thinking of this glorious sight, for a length of time, after having left these falls behind.

It is not possible to say at what point the fall is at an end; the ground slopes downward, as seen when one walks along the rocky shore, and the height of these falls may therefore be given by different observers with very different figures, but it appears after all, that the height must be considered to be less than the height of the Niagara falls, while the volumes of water, which these falls carry are bigger than the volume of the Niagara falls. Where these falls end, the lower Parana commences, but for many leagues the surging waters rush on, making it impossible for any sailing craft to cross from one shore to the other, in fact, the lower Parana is more or less dangerous and boisterous in its whole course, until it joins the Paraguay river, in connection with which river it passes at length the foreshore of Buenos Aires. It must therefore be distinctly understood, that the Salto Guayra has very little of the Niagara vertical fall, it is a run down a steep slope, mostly in various channels, which sometimes open and sometimes close, forming slender or broad islands, of which the greater part are full of impenetrable forests, through which it is impossible to see and to observe what takes places behind them. Nevertheless behind some of these islands one sees great clouds of smoke, or of vapour, or of foam, indicating that waterfalls, very likely much stronger and heavier than those one can see from the Paraguayan side, exist on the Brazilian side of the river, but they are shut out from sight by the big forests, and it is not easily possible to cross the river, in order to examine what wonders are hidden to us. The width of the river I calculated to 3000 be metres or say 2 miles, but this space is filled up by a chos of islands which in some instances only leave the width of a broad street for a channel in which the leaping waters of the falls can escape. Some of the islands are low, others are high, say as high as a good sized Church tower, and behind one of these rocky islands the seething waters get so enclosed and barred that they rise to the height of the island, and having traversed it fall down again in their old channel in a hundred milkwhite cascades. Above these cascades a big sailing frigate appears to have been wrecked on the rocks; it is lying on its side with its bare masts high in the air, right on the top of one of the highest ledges. The Indians say it came from San Paulo in Brazil and was carried by the current right into the falls. But it is nothing of the sort. With a good telescope one discerns plainly, that it is a collection of big forest trees, which, curiously enough, have been thrown up on rocks, where they have hooked together until they have got this fantastical shape.

It is of much interest to look at the meeting of these waters from different channels. They come in different directions, with different height, different colour, different force, and when they meet, there is such a turmoil, such racing and winding and turning, that it seems warfare, though they at last are all rushing in the same direction. Some of the waves leap up and shun each other and form hollow places and tumble together and roar and hiss that the noise can be heard at 5 leagues distance, as I distinctly observed one still night.

The Brazilian shore is much higher and steeper than the Paraguayan shore. There are regular mountains on the Brazilian side, all clad in green and with deep indentures, and this accounts for the large volume of water which rushes out from that side into the rocky channels on the Paraguayan side. No doubt the Upper Paraná has openings on that side, of which we know nothing. There is room enough for the Uppsr Paraná to empty itself into hidden falls, because the width of the River above the falls is many leagues, forming a charming and quiet lake, like one of the Italian lakes, with beautiful surroundings. But there is no boat at hand to explore this lake, no vessel comes near it, for it is treacherous and deep. Should a boat be seized by its current and oars or wind refuse to act, its last hour would be at hand. It is curious to observe how extremes meet near these falls, the greatest quietness above the falls, and such turmoil below.

It is impossible to believe that such exquisite scenery, such extraordinary show of natural forces, should not impel mankind to proceed to these falls and admire the grandeur of nature's boldest productions. And yet, hardly any visitors ever went to visit these solitary regions, and those who went were foreigners. As far as I know, no Paraguayan ever went, or at least never wrote about them. In fact the difficulties to reach the falls have been very great. To the West the whole region is covered with inpenetrable forests, there are no grazing plots for animals, and no inhabitants save wild Indians. It was then necessary to approach the falls in sailing vessels, and this has been done in the case of most visitors. Some went down the river Igatimi, and when they reached the upper Paraná they followed the coast until within a few leagues of the Falls, as in the expedition of Enrique Lopez. Others went up in canoes against the current, as in the expedition of Schoch and Barnes. But this is costly and difficult and dangerous to boot, as in the expedition of Dr. Bourgade. If a road could be cut through the forest, this would simplify matters much.—26 years ago a Government Commission opened up this Road, the frontier line between Brazil and Paraguay, but it got closed again on account of the fertility of the soil, the exube rance of vegetation, and because no visitors ever went to make use of the Road, the war then having just finished and the country being in a very deplorable state. But now it is very different, since the exploration and working of very valuable yerbales has brought many inhabitants, if not to the neighbourhood of the Guayra Falls, at least to the Road which leads to the Falls.

THE BOER REPUBLIC.

Some of the practical results of the land-grabbing policy of modern Europe are becoming every day more evident. Matters are decidedly on the move in the "Dark Continent." What with the Italians in Abyssinia, the English in Ashantee, and the British Chartered Company in the Transvaal, stirring events are the order of the day.

The little Boer Republic has a rather romantic history. The descendants of the original Dutch colonists, time after time, these wild frontiersmen have "trekked" away back into new country to avoid the restrictions of a British rule. But, ever with the same relentless persistency, John Bull's arm, backed by an equally long purse, has followed them even in the wilderness; and to-day, with a British protectorate over Bechuanaland and Mashonaland, the Transvaal is pretty well hemmed in. Some years ago a party of Boers, numbering something like 700 persons, made their way across the Kalahari desert and finally settled in the Portuguese province of Benguela, in south-west Africa, taking over two years on the journey. The history of Majuba Hill, where the Boer sharp-shooters played such havoc with the British regulars, is too well known to require repetition. The fact is that in a wild country regular troops have no earthly chance against frontiersmen who each act independently, and can make every shot tell from their shelter behind a tree or a rock.

The cause of the present outbreak can be traced to the "Kaffir" boom on the London Stock Exchange. Enormous amounts of British and foreign capital have of late years been invested in the Transvaal; and at the present time, the foreign population — mostly British and American—actually outnumbers that of the Boers, many of these men, it must be remembered, being harum-scarum adventurers, equally impatient of the restrictions of settled government as the Boers themselves. Some friction was bound to result. The output of gold from the mines is simply enormous, and places the Australian gold fields in the shade completely. All these enterprises are owned and conducted by the foreigners. Indirectly, of course, the Boers have made a lot of money out of them. The action of the Chartered Company in trying to force the hand of the British Government was decidedly unwise. The peaceful conquest of the Transvaal was certain to occur with increase of population. The Company is playing a very strong hand. They contemplate connecting Cape Town with Cairo by rail, traversing the whole length of the continent; and it is said that their telegraph line over the same route —actually in course of construction— will be completed within the next half year.

In the year 1887, when the writer was travelling in East Central Africa, he met the caravan led by Sir John Willoughby and Sir Robert Harvey at the base of Mount Kilima-njaro, one of the snow-clad peaks of Central Africa. Later on, Willoughby served the Company in the Matabele war. He is a good shot and an expert hunter. According to latest advices, he and the other leader, Dr. Jameson, have both been taken prisoners by the Boers. In many ways the Boers are to be admired. Their fanaticism is due to ignorance, as also, we hope, their tendencies towards cruelty in their dealings with the natives. The upshot of it all is hard to see, but the probabilities are in favour of a pacific solution of the difficulty. On the other hand, the elements of serious complications are not wanting. Some years ago the writer saw something of the Transvaal, and found the Boers very kind and hospitable, in spite of their prejudices against the English.

OVATION TO MOTHER FINDLAY.

Since the departure three years ago of the popular lady Superior, the Hon. Mrs. Fitzgerald, nothing has been seen in this city to equal the demonstration of love and respect at the Central Railway station on Friday night, when Mothers Findlay, Gildmartin, a French lady and two postulants left for Chile.

As the hour for the train approached there was positively no standing room on the platform, ladies and gentlemen of the first native and foreign circles in town and suburbs forsaking their half-cooked dinners to get a parting glance at the quiet pale face of one or other of the fair travellers.

Mother Findlay was driven from the Convent to the Station in private carriage and pair by Mr. and Mrs. Norton to whose charming daughter she has been in very truth a second mother.

Mrs H. Duggan and Miss Catherine Kelly were equally attentive to Mother Guild Martin, a highly accomplished American lady of Irish parents resident here some five years.

The rest followed in irregular order and as best they could.

One postulant, a Dublin girl, was driven down by the family with which she had lived as governess during 13 years. The other, a Miss Marenco, was cared for by her family until the last sad moment arrived, nor did the French nun lack friends amongst "les enfants de Marie." To-day they should be resting in Mendoza in the Convent of the "Good Shepherds," whose Revd. Mother was educated at one of the schools of the "Sacred Heart" Order, and who telegraphed to offer the hospitalities of her house to the religious travellers immediately on learning that they had chosen the overland route. The orders from Paris were for the nuns to take the first Pacific steamer from Montevideo, but it was feared by the physicians here that Mother Findlay could not stand the sea voyage in the present delicate state of her health. On the other hand it is hoped that the air and scenery of the Andes will revive her failing strength, this gifted lady's numerous friends here having arranged to petition per telegraph for a rescission of the decree of separation until persuaded by the faculty that some such trip was imperatively necessary to save her delicate frame from the terrible effects of overwork in the class-room, midnight prayer and daily fasting. The railway accommodation on both sides of the Andes is not to be beaten the world over, but the six hour's journey on mule-back at the summit will be a regular tug-of-war for delicate ladies. Bur our readers may be certain that all that loving care can suggest or dollars supply will be done for the comfort and safety of the travellers, whose fate is already pretty well secure if heartfelt prayers count for anything in this "vale of tears."

Three of Madame Findlay's brothers are Jesuit priests, whilst two of her sistars are nuns like herself. Such devotion to religion could not be found surely outside of the "Island of Saints" and speaks eloquently of the spirit of a people that are to-day more respected in adversity than many of their more pretentious neighbours after basking for centuries in unalloyed prosperity.

Madame Nerecan of Barcelona is now in charge of the Calle Callao house assisted by Mothers Power, Killmurray and others to numerous to mention. Still it is not to much to say that they must all be ladies of the first order in intellect and accomplishments to be able to part with so many and such brilliant colleagues at a moment when the New Year's work is about to open with increased vigour and popularity.

CRICKET.

LOMAS v. ROSARIO.

It was a treat to see the weather behaving such an uncompromising brick, clearing up so splendidly for the continuation of this match at Palermo yesterday. Taking up the game at the point it closed at overnight, Rosario having still 3 wickets to fall and 183 runs to get to tie their opponents, Penman and Dorning, the not outs, resumed their places.

Tupholme and G. S. Anderson were deputed to lead the attack. Two wickets went down without the score being materially improved. Lamb then drove one straight but high to H. Anderson at mid-on which the latter got to but could not hold. Colson was then bowled clean by Anderson which brought the innings to a close, Anderson getting three wickets for no runs, both he and Tupholme coming out with very good averages.

Rosario of course followed on, R. Dorning and A M Lamb going to the wickets the attack remained unchanged. Without a run scored, in the second over Lamb tried shoulder-opening with Tupholme but failed to catch hold and put an easy one into Bridger's hands just alongside the bowler. Bartlett joined Dorning and they held possession for some time, though run-getting was awfully slow. Tupholme disarranged Bartlett's lumber yard with the score only 13 for 2 wickets, and Knight joined Dorning, the latter being sent back first ball, a trimming bailer from Anderson. With Knight and Bury the pace began to improve appreciably, the latter getting Anderson to leg for two and then ligting him close to the pavilion for another brace. Bury failed to get hold of one shortly after to leg and gave an awfully difficult chance to H. Anderson. Bury supplemented this an over later by lifting Anderson clean over the pavilion and road for six treating him to another 4 next ball. Knight got an awfully easy let off from the wicket keeper immediately afterwards and signalized the event by despatching Tupholme to the boundary so that runs now came apace. As the they kept on coming. G. S. Anderson went off in favor of H. B. Without any change except a considerable addition to the runs. Tupholme got Bury out leg before when well set; the batsman had played a brilliant innings of 31 with only the chance above mentioned and he got his runs in the most dashing manner, a treat to witness. H. Dorning was then bowled by Tupholme without scoring and 72 was posted for 5 wickets. Knight however, was still busy, getting Tupholme to leg for two and then driving him beautifully straight for four, whilst in the over he lighted Harry Anderson right into the pavilion. Beaumont unfortunately never seemed comfortable and was clean bowled by Anderson, after which an adjournment was made for lunch, the telegraph reading 85-6-0. On renewing after lunch the first ball sent down by Anderson was despatched by Hay the incomer, to the leg boundary and was splendidly held by Halstead close to the fence. With Penman in, runs continued to come and fairly fast, the new comer being the busiest of the two, both bowlers being treated impartially which caused the retirement of H. B. Anderson in favor of J. O. The change worked so well that Penman fell a victim to the new bowler the third ball of the over, the outgoer having put on 16 by very merry cricket. A bailer from Tupholme accounted for H. Colson's wicket with the score.

HURLINGHAM v. BUENOS AIRES C.C.

SECOND DAY.

AN EVENLY DRAWN GAME.

This match was continued yesterday in fine cool weather. Overnight Hurlingham were all out for 175. B.A.C.C. having 145 for six wickets when stumps were drawn for the day. B.A.C.C. resumed their innings next day and were finally dismissed for 221. E. R. Gifford added 13 runs to his score and looked very like reaching the century when he was dismissed by Moscrop for a splendid innings of 85. R. E. H. Anderson carried his overnight score of 28 to 52 when he fell to Ker Seymour. The rest did very little and the innings closed for 221. Hurlingham began their second innings badly as Forde was run out before he managed to score. But affairs were soon mended when Lacey became Dillon's partner as he hit his 27 runs merrily. Lightbody then joined Dillon and the total was rapidly taken to over 150 when both men were out within a short time of each other. H. M. Mills made 28 in his good old style when the innings were declared closed with 5 wickets down for 200, leaving Buenos Aires to get 154 in a little under two hours. Had there been sufficient time, B.A.C.C. might have passed their opponents. Nevertheless, when time was called, they had run up 88 for 3 wickets. The following are the scores:

B. A. AND ROSARIO RAILWAY V. SAN MARTIN.

The above match was played yesterday at Belgrano and resulted in a win for the S.M.A.C.

San Martin went to the wickets first and succeeded in knocking up a total of 62. The B. A. & R. R. then went in and were finally dismissed for 47. In the secoed innings San Martin did not come off so well being all dismissed for the small total of 38. The A. B. & R. ## RAILWAY ITEMS.

Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso Transandine.—The report made up to June 20th, 1895. states that the receipts have amounted to £6,202 and the expenses to £18,251, showing, irrespective of the Government guarantee, a deficiency for the year ended June 30th, 1895, of £11,749, as compared with £10,414 in 1894. The Argentine Government is now taking steps towards the definite settlement of the railway guarantees, by commutation or otherwise. A proposal has been made with that object to the company, but the amount offered by the Government for the completion of the company's railway and the settlement of all mutual claims was quite inadequate and could not be accepted. At the request of the Government the board has suggested bases for a settlement, and the proposal is now under the consideration of the Government. The Chilian Government has granted an increase of the guarantee from 4 per cent. upon a capital of £1,200,000, to 4½ per cent. upon a capital of £1,900,000.

Cordoba and Rosario—The report for the year ended June 30th shows that the gross receipts were $1,922,006, against $1,396,605, and the net profit $756,597, against $425,171. After crediting the Four per Cent. First debenture stock with interest to June 30th, there remains in net revenue account a balance of £13,434 for the Six per Cent. (Second) Debenture stock, or sufficient to pay 2¼ per cent. on account of the six months' interest on this stock to September 1 last, leaving a small balance to be carried foward.

Argentine Great Western.—The directors have declared a dividend of 7 per cent. in respect of arrears of dividends on the five per cent. preference shares.

"The bright, moving picture of the country's trade, commerce and production on the opening year consoles us with the conviction that its future is superior to human error and independent of individual influence."

The above lines, quoted from THE STANDARD of 3rd inst., are the true expression of our sentiments respecting the present position and expected future of the country, if we are to judge from what has occurred to us, as a minute fraction in its common wealth, during the year that has expired, and the hopeful advent of the new one on which we have entered.

If we take our branch of trade, and instance our business in particular, we have to admit that the prospects as regards the country at large are not at all exaggerated in the transcript we have made us of, as the increase in our concern has been beyond our most sanguine expectations during the old year, and, on the eve of the new one, promise is given of a very satisfactory augmentation.

To keep pace, therefore, with this hopeful state of affairs we have made ample provision, and our stock, which is always kept in adequate supply, will be periodically increased with every novelty to meet the increasing requirements of the year.

Rowland's Odonto
An antiseptic, preservative, and aromatic dentifrice, which whitens the teeth, prevents and arrests decay, and sweetens the breath. It contains no mineral acids, no gritty matter or injurious astringents, keep the mouth, gums, and teeth free from the unhealthy action of germs in organic matter between the teeth. Is the most wholesome tooth powder for ladies and children, and being most beautifully perfumed it is a perfect toilet luxury for ladies who value the appearance of their own and their children's teeth. 2s. 9d. per box.

Rowland's Macassar Oil
Has been known for 100 years as the best preserver and beautifer of the the hair; it prevents it falling off or turning grey, strengthens weak hair, and eradicates scurf and dandruff; it is unsurpassed as a brilliantine for the beard and moustaches, to which it imparts a soft and silky appearence. It is also sold in a golden colour for fair; haired children; it is most exquisitely perfumed.

Rowland's Kalydor
A soothing and emoilient milk for the face, and is most cooling to the skin in hot climates; it removes freckles, tan, sun burn, roughness and redness of the skin, pimples, cutaneous eruptions, &c., and produces soft fair skin, and a lovely delicate complexion; it is warranted free from any mineral poisons and is absolutely harmless. Bottles 2s. 3d. and 4s. 6d.; sold by Druggists and Stores.
IMPORTANT CAUTION.—Be sure to ask for Rowland's Macassar Oil, Kalydor and Odonto, of 20, Hatton Garden, London, and see that each article bears their signature in red ink; all others are worthless and poisonous imitations; 100 years prove that Rowlands' are the best and only genuine
